

Crowdsourcing Projects for Shared Creativity

Visit <http://www.aaronkoblin.com/work.html/> for magnificent examples of collaborative art projects, and keep up with Koblin's projects for future opportunities to participate.

For the thrill of contributing to something bigger than yourself right now, become part these projects:

- 1 Swarm Sketch <http://swarmsketch.com/>
Here you can contribute a line to an online canvas, a sketch based on a popular search term for the week.
- 2 The One Million Masterpiece <http://www.millionmasterpiece.com/>
This ongoing project, with 31,206 artists in 174 countries at this writing, seeks to fill squares of the masterpiece from the global community.
- 3 The Johnny Cash Project <http://www.thejohnnycashproject.com/>
This project crowdsources images to tie to a recording of Cash's posthumously-released song "Ain't No Grave."
- 4 The Virtual Sunset <http://www.virtual-sunset.net/>
Here you can contribute a line to an online canvas, a sketch based on a popular search term for the week.
- 5 Eric Whitacre's Virtual Choir
<http://www.kickstarter.com/projects/2085483835/virtual-choir-4-bliss>
For this project, you send in a video of yourself singing. Videos from around the world are then cut together to create a global group that makes music as one choir. The fourth Virtual Choir was just funded on January 31, 2013. You can see a prior one at the link.
